Subject: GPS Simulator Training Agenda

GPS Creations holds training sessions on the GPSSIM14 simulators in order to help users become more proficient at using the simulator. Usually, a one-day session is all that's required. Sometimes a two-day session is held at larger institutions in order to accommodate users the choice of either day which best meets their schedule. See page 2 for cost information on these sessions. Topics covered are:

I. Introduction

1. GPS Creations – who and where we are located. How to contact us.
2. Typical uses and applications for a GPS simulator.

II. Use of the GPSSIM14 simulator

1. Initial set-up of the simulator including such things as hardware make-up of the simulator, what options are available, tips and FAQ's on initial use of the simulator, RF cabling and connections you should use.
2. Discussion on Voyager and Tapestry GPS simulator software.

III. Application Programming

1. Examination of the test scenarios that's included with your simulator.
2. How to generate and/or modify your own test programs.
3. Use of the NDL Post-processor – generating test runs from NMEA data files or from your own lat/lon inputs.
4. Updating GPS almanacs.
5. Simulator RF calibration.

IV. "Hands On" Experience Operating the Simulator

Each attendee generates his/her own test program and runs the test program on the simulator to verify operation is correct.

V. Conclusion

Q & A session on the material presented and opportunity for GPS discussions in general

Please contact GPS Creations for specific topics or special applications in the training schedule if not addressed in the above agenda.

Price and Scheduling:

The training sessions are priced at $1200 per day plus reasonable travel and living expenses. There is a $25 charge for each student's class material. Class size should be limited to ten people maximum.

If the schedule permits travel to the customer's location on the afternoon prior, and only one overnight hotel stay with departure the afternoon or evening of the day of training, that is considered a one day charge. No partial day charges are permitted.

Breaks in the presentation are scheduled where attendees can check email, phone calls, etc.

For sessions held outside the United States, airfare will be business class.

GPS Creations requires 30 days advance notice on scheduling a GPS simulator training session.
